

Power connection in the articulation

Power connection systems routed beneath the articulation are mainly used in high-floor buses. We also offer power connection systems for particular low-floor articulations that can be fitted beneath the articulation.

back to power connection systems