

Injection-molded metal parts

The economically produced injection-molded plastic parts can be used as housings with integrated mechanical loading, function and assembly elements.

Their advantage: Electronics and mechanics can be connected in the smallest spaces without any additional assembly.

Of course we are prepared to conventionally injection-mold around metal inserts in order to gain freedom of design and to avoid assembly costs.